Excerpt: . . . to the lumber business he is interested in coal and oil, from which he derives a goodly profit. His political allegiance is given to the Democratic party, but he is independent in the matter of voting, casting his ballot for the candidate whom he considers best qualified for office, irrespective of party. He has never sought or held public office, preferring to devote his entire time and attention to his business career. There is an ancient family of this name in Dorsetshire, JORDAN England. Probably the most numerous American Jordan- family is that headed by Rev. Robert Jordan, a priest, or possibly only a deacon, of the Church of England, who came to Maine and was the pioneer of Episcopalianism in that region and leader of the opposition to Massachusetts; he afterward removed to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where he died. Guilford, Connecticut, had among...
